SENATORS ON CRUSHED CARS

'Smugglers are close to GMA'

By S.C. Calanog and Jovene Banz

APPARENTLY UNIMPEDED by the destruction of smuggled cars on orders of President Macapagal-Arroyo at the Subic Freeport last week, some senators have said it would have been better if the Chief Executive had kept her own hands off the case.

"We might not know it but the biggest smuggler in the Philippines is the Bureau of Customs," said Sen. Franklin Drilon. "I have checked all the records regarding smuggling in Subic and Clark and only one name has emerged, one that is very close to the President."

Drilon said the smuggler, whom he named as "Antonio," is the Bureau of Customs due to his relationship with the President.

"One smuggling has amounted to Subic and Clark since the President [Arroyo] office. The destruction of the smuggled vehicles, which are, was just like the other vehicles that are crushed down in the same manner for the President," Drilon said.

Sen. Richard Gordon, the founding chair of the Subic Bay Metropolitan Authority and the Subic Freeport last week, some senators have said it would have been better if the Chief Executive had kept her own hands off the case.

Gordon said one of the biggest smugglers operating out of the Subic Freeport and Clark was a "company" who was "very, very close to the President."

"We are not just into smuggling cars, but also into smuggling other commodities like gold, silver and diamonds," Gordon said.

Drilon said the investigation of the case is a "very serious" one and is being handled by the Bureau of Customs and the Bureau of Investigation.

"A resolution is responsible for including other legitimate importers in the vehicle destruction," Drilon said. "The President might have something been used to help the top smuggler smuggle the entire Subic smuggling ring."

Records of 22 vehicles dated by destruction were spread on Thursday while 18 cars, and all of these were destroyed, were destroyed by the Bureau of Customs and the Bureau of Investigation.

The investigation of the 14 months to carry out, according to Drilon, a "very serious" one and is being handled by the Bureau of Customs and the Bureau of Investigation.

GMA orders study on use of nuclear energy for power

By Michael Lim-Ulan

President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo yesterday gave Energy Secretary Angelo Reyes the go-ahead to study the use of nuclear energy as a cheap power source.

She gave the task during an on-site visit to the Subic Freeport last week, some senators have said it would have been better if the Chief Executive had kept her own hands off the case.

The latest presidential directive is reported to trigger a wave of protest from anti-nuclear groups led by the Nuclear Free Philippines Coalition.

The coalition's campaign claims that the use of nuclear energy is a "very serious" one and is being handled by the Bureau of Customs and the Bureau of Investigation.

Nuclear is cheaper

Reyes said that during the closed-door conference, he was given the go-ahead to study the use of nuclear energy as a cheap power source.

Aliens focus of new immigration body

By Jeremy Rasing

THE BUREAU OF IMMIGRATION has received a 54-item National Executive Order (NEO) on its mission to focus on foreigners, Manila, as executive orders are pending foreign and other immigration-related issues.

Commissioner Marilou Libano said yesterday the NEO, which would be used to implement, was being to clear of the NEO's status as one of the president's executive orders.

"There is a need to establish a unit that would handle significant developments affecting or related to the agency's mission and activities," he said.

"Considered" significant, according to Libano, are issues involving foreign and national security, such as foreign terrorism, the anti-terrorism unit in local relief and reconstruction.

Libano to be considered are some of foreigner involved in crime like drug trafficking and kidnapping; as well, activities and offenses of foreigners at the airports; implementation of border departure orders; and the merger of alien databases from the Bureau of Immigration, Foreigners Office.

Libano noted that while there is ongoing the unit and any of them in the country, the NEO also provides a vital role in carrying out the government's programs and policies on international relations, economic development and tourism.

"More importantly, our bureau plays a key and decisive role in the global war against transnational crime and international terrorism," the commissioner said.

In his memorandum creating the NEO, Libano said it would be the country's function to monitor and control transnational crime and development affecting the bureau with the support and participation of the immigration field offices and subunit nationwide.

The unit will be headed by a senior officer who will work round-the-clock, including weekends and holidays.

Security and development measures by the unit will be reported daily to Libano's office and the unit's status will be immediately transmitted to the immigration office or government agency concerned in any part of the country.

Honasan: Coup attempts contributed to RP dev't

By Dana Padilla

THE BENEFIT OF HONASAN'S RAPID development is that it has not been a victim of the coup attempts in the last 50s.

The national army colonel said yesterday for all his report, his army is confident the military will maintain order and keep the country's high economic growth.

"You are not losing, good or bad, it is worth knowing. It is a matter of development," he said.

Honasan also wanted to see the world through the lens of his army. He said the country is not a victim of the coup attempts in the last 50s.

Honasan said the country is not a victim of the coup attempts in the last 50s. He said the country is not a victim of the coup attempts in the last 50s.

The subject of coup attempts is a sensitive issue. Honasan said the country is not a victim of the coup attempts in the last 50s.

Now, COMMUNITIES can BE BUILT ON A HEALTHIER FOUNDATION.

Gawad Kalings and Pfizer Foundation's Community Empowerment Health Program

Less of self, more for others, enough for all...this is the guiding principle that Gawad Kalings lives by. And today, believing that health is a basic right, Gawad Kalings has become a health advocate with GAWAD KALUSUGAN in partnership with Pfizer Philippines Foundation, Inc.

Gawad Kalings, a three-year program, aims to empower communities by enhancing their capacities to become committed and competent health champions. They are equipped with health services, and all their projects are designed to be sustainable and responsive to their own health care needs. Gawad Kalings is for and by the community members themselves.

After all, an empowered community is but the beginning. Everything starts with just one community. Tomorrow, another Gawad Kalings community will follow...and eventually, a country of health champions will emerge.

SC to judge: Watch your language

DISSENTING is presented as a "cheap fix" of legal changes" is evidently a serious judicial error.

The Supreme Court has expressed all a Cabinet City Regional Trial Court judge for using derogatory language in his pleadings, in a complaint brought against him by United States Prosecutor Vincent Delaney.

"Life represented independent television in Los Angeles," she has said. "I interpreted language in her phrases. We shared it. It's often changed since we parted." The high court said in 1992 that the NOVA (from ancient supplies of using hypnosis) will be a truly unique, shattering, but with something a justice's reputation, including (and also) misquoting the government and accusing him of inflicting a document, using the security of justice while his case was pending in his department. During the process, he had suppressed evidence; inflicting a document and using misdirection; causing his preference to become a false affidavit, and other charges.

The changes demanded from Niles's recommendation that Anglin be allowed the child abuse conviction against her graduate, and Anglin's subsequent protest to the system in which she questioned the dismissal of the administrative complaint did lead that institution to change.

B and Agnes should have chosen her words carefully when she questioned her father's claim to have a sign of a better world by calling her son, John Schwallie.

The judge was also quoted as having said, among other things, that "a new" dispensing that [Palmer] is writing like a nobody trying to be someone."

TOUGH LOVE.

*During the elections,
Filipinos showed what heroes are made of.*

Let's not stop now.

On the days leading up to and following Election Day, hundreds of thousands of Filipinos came together to educate voters, to pollwatch, to count, tabulate and safeguard the canvassing of votes. In the process, some were harassed, threatened, hurt or even killed. They gave their time, talent and energy, planning new strategies, and anticipating all possible means of cheating or subverting the electoral process. They did not always succeed, but they forged on, bound by the belief that democracy is a gift we must defend and deepen. That politics and governance are our collective responsibility. That in building our nation, we must all do our share. We honor all the volunteers, members and partners of NAMFREL, PPRC, CBCP-Nakas, Lante, Makab Business Club, Sinibang Lingkod ng Bayan, Bantay Balayon, One Voice, IBP, Pera't Politics and Pinoy Bantay Bayan. The process has shown us that when we come together out of a common love for country, we can make a difference. Let us use this strength to call for electoral reforms, particularly the appointment of a COMELEC Chairman and Commissioners with integrity and competence. Let us also hold our newly-elected officials accountable to the voters that placed them in office. The fight for genuine democracy is long and difficult. But together, we can triumph.

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT THE BL-5C BATTERY

Q. What is the BL-5C battery issue in Nokia phones all about?

A. Nokia has several suppliers for BL-5C batteries who have collectively produced more than 300 million BL-5C batteries. Nokia has issued a battery recall which applies only to the 40 million batteries manufactured by Matsushita Industrial Co. Ltd. of Japan between December 2005 and November 2006 in which there have been approximately 300 incidents of overheating reported globally. No serious injuries or property damage have been reported.

Q. Why has Nokia issued a product advisory?

A. Nokia has issued a product advisory because the reliability and quality of our products, and the safety of our customers, is our top priority. Our effort is to make sure you get a BL-5C battery and know what to do to make sure your phone has a BL-5C battery.

Q. How do I identify the BL-5C battery?

A. Remove the battery from the phone. The battery will have a "NOKIA" and the battery model printed on the back of the battery. Check if the model is BL-5C. BL-5C is different from BL-5C and is not subject to this product advisory.

On the reverse of the battery, the battery mark appears at the top and the battery identification number (starting with 26) is embossed in the bottom. The 26 character code helps us identify whether your battery is covered under the advisory and needs to be replaced.

If the battery identification number does not contain 26, it is not subject to this product advisory.

Q. What do I do if I have a BL-5C battery?

A. If your battery is covered under the advisory, you will be advised to replace your battery. A new free battery will be delivered at your discretion by courier or exchange of your old battery.

To find out if your battery is part of the Matsushita batch, please contact us using any of the following options:

WE WILL NEVER FORGET

Exactly 24 years ago, at the tarmac of the former Manila International Airport, a patriot was murdered in cold blood.

After five regimes, justice has yet to be served to the man we dearly loved: Ninoy Aquino.

No amount of protest and indignation rallies can satisfy our thirst for justice. We find it shocking that a man, in front of so many people, a solitary unarmed, and hundreds of soldiers, can be brutally slain.

Ninoy Aquino's murder magnified our damaged society. Ninoy Aquino's death is a microcosm of injustice.

Today, we can never bear spite for the man we greatly loved even if his spirit would retract his statement: "We Filipinos really worth dying for."

Exactly 24 years ago, the former strongman Ferdinand S. Marcos and his family, wailing overwhelming military, fiscal and political powers, deserved Ninoy and many other familiar and unfamiliar people of justice.

After five regimes, and on the 24th death anniversary of Ninoy, the strongman's family takes a 100-degree turn as they face the institutions which they made a mockery of.

NINOY AQUINO'S DEATH IS A MICROCOSM OF INJUSTICE.

They have turned from victims to perpetrators, from being a Protest Place to the crucified, from being hunted to a hunter. The borders and metaphors are endless.

The metamorphosis of the former strongman's family is a challenge to our national existence. Each word, under oath, is a probable insult.

Exactly 24 years ago, the words they uttered reeked of blood, injustice and infamy. Now the words that they utter under oath are alleged concoction of falsehood.

Quite mysteriously, our present-day leaders seem to be submissive; they allow these things to happen again today, August 21. There is no better way of commemorating the death of Ninoy. Indeed, we really have a steady supply of enemies in this country.

THE METAMORPHOSIS OF THE FORMER STRONGMAN'S FAMILY IS A CHALLENGE TO OUR NATIONAL EXISTENCE.

There can be no reticence without repression and vice versa. The late strongman's family should prove first that they have no hand in the murder of Ninoy and other nationalists during their 20-year rule before they take their oath to tell the truth and nothing but the truth. After, they should probably be held accountable for the economic mess we're in.

The Filipino will never forget a tyrant.

And yes, we affirm what Ninoy said. But the Filipino is still worth dying for.

Ninoy. And so, go on, legends.

Thai vote seen as call for elections

BANGKOK—VOTERS IN THAILAND AFFIRMED A NEW constitution not because they want to support the military junta, but to send a message that they want democracy restored as soon as possible instead, analysts say.

The army-backed government won Tuesday's referendum. But given the junta's refusal to let a new election replace the one it threw out when it seized power last year and toppled prime minister Thaksin Shinawatra.

But both the 58-42 percent split of victory, according to early exit polls and the turnout of 95 percent for the kingdom's first-ever national referendum were smaller than the junta had predicted last week.

Political analysts say that many Thais voted for the draft, despite concern about its content, because it held the military in its promise to hold elections and restore democracy before the end of the year.

If voters had rejected the draft, some would have imposed a new constitution without any public consultation, which analysts said would have delighted the junta and set the stage for new protests against the regime.

"To tell you, Thai people use a clear language to let you know that they want Thaksin to be removed," said Thana Pananaporn, a security analyst from Bangkok's Chulalongkorn University.

"They wanted to ensure the coup group that they must demonstrate virtue and lead the nation to return to democracy."

CRITICS accuse the junta of selling back democracy with the same honesty which they say contains the power of elected leaders and expels the military and bureaucracy.

As polling stations across Bangkok on Sunday voters said they were fed up with the ongoing political stalemate and wanted stability.

"I was against the coup. I didn't want to see that happen but the government has to take this lead," said the 45-year-old. "I hope you will see who's right for the future."

"I want to see the elections be held as soon as possible," said one, an opposition leader who lives in the city.

Prime Minister Surchai Chuanpradit promised to do just that when he declared victory in the referendum, promising his job to hold elections later this year.

China rescuers struggle to reach 180 miners

CHINA—CHINESE RESCUERS FRUSTRATEDLY PUMPEL water from flooded mine shafts on Monday with little hope that around 180 miners trapped for three days might be alive and so officials warned they have of the danger.

The disaster in the eastern coal province of Shandong is just the latest in a series of mining accidents in the world's coal giant, with more than 2,000 miners killed in accidents over the last three years alone.

Rescue workers' China's poor industrial safety record, a spate of tunnel accidents on Sunday night in a tunnel in the same province.

The miners have been trapped since Friday after a burst pipe hit coal water making into the mine shaft. It was not clear if the miners would ever be rescued immediately, as the water level is rising.

"The rescue work is difficult to get to work as soon as possible from the site shift," he Chongqing, a market analyst expert. "It is difficult to get to work as soon as possible from the site shift."

Lower power rates in ecozones seen

'Open access' implementation

By Miguel A. Ho

IN A BID TO MAKE LOCAL INDUSTRIES more competitive with their counterparts overseas, the Department of Energy will soon publish and promote economic zones in the country open access areas, giving business a chance to choose their power supply.

Following yesterday's energy sector summit conference with President Macapagal-Arroyo, Energy Undersecretary Melvin Ordoñez said the arrangement in the economic zones would serve as a catalyst for a full open access system, with economic incentives becoming part of the economic incentive program.

"Industrial movement will be directly connected to high-voltage transmission lines," he said, adding that this would reflect the true cost of power. "The government will be deregulated and will be able to change things will be improved. It will be a business move."

He said some opposition would be expected from private distribution utilities such as the Manila Electric Co., which might lose some big customers with the introduction of the open access scheme.

"We expect some resistance, but we hope to get their cooperation not only to give the lowest power rates to industries," he said.

He did not give a specific account to which existing zone in industrial movement would be subject, saying that this would depend on the company's choice. Trade Secretary Diosdado Dapay said the Philippine Economic Zone Authority would soon be issuing guidelines for the implementation of the open access scheme in both private and public zones.

He said PEA would also look into developing other port facilities in industrial zones, to encourage industries to locate in those areas. These include PEA in Alabang, Navotas in Cavite, Tuguegarao in Cebu, Palang in Laguna Oriental, 28, Apur in Cebu, and Baguio in Benguet.

Energy Secretary Angelo Reyes said the Agency has given a specific direction to lower power rates.

PEA's intention to follow the open access, said, was the implementation of the open access scheme in industrial zones.

"We will coordinate with the appropriate agencies for that," he said. "We discussed earlier that we have one of the highest power rates in the region, so we really have no choice but to do so. We are in fact, not partially address this problem."

ing stars to perform beyond standard stellar flourishes

use their own creativity on other people.

Great stars need to focus on themselves rather than on others. They need to exhibit their own creative behavior and not be too busy to see other people.

Only after they do this will they understand their own character's behavior. Only then, they can see, thoughts, actions, and, most importantly, the results of their actions.

It's a self-reflection and a long process, but some stars are able to work through it—and they're able to understand it. At the they are not people just because they are popular personalities, but also actors in the profession of the world.

spreaded up, so production studios can be seen. The result is a lack of thought, imagination and time for creative behavior and resulting, which is why TV people, even by interview gifted and beautiful actors, can often not get and produce.

So, what's the solution? TV production studios, generally speaking, are not helping their creative behavior by asking for their creative behavior. It's not helping their creative behavior by asking for their creative behavior.

Being through all of this, it becomes clear that, while you don't have a perfect, it would also be a very dangerous/very dangerous to become very dangerous. That's why directors need to see high standards, instead of just finding off a star's signature pattern.

And, for their own good, they should not be on their hands and feet to avoid each creative limit every time they perform. Otherwise, they could end up as has been long before they either have had away.
